The City Election.

Our city election passed off very quietly last Monday, and the vote, as will be seen, was not large. Neither party made much exertion, except in cases where there was a special interest or doubtful issue in the choice of ward officers, as it was understood there was to be no active contest for the Mayor. Geo. W. Kimball, Jr., Esq., was the Republican candidate for Mayor, as we stated last week. The Democrats held a sort of mongrel caucus last Saturday evening, which was called as a "citizens' meeting." Many of the leading Democrats took no part in it, and it seems to have been rather a jolly affair, in which a good many of "the boys" voted for "the fun of the thing." There was no lack of votes, however, for both Democratic and Republican candidates—many more votes than voters, in fact. Mr. John T. Berry was declared the nominee of this caucus, who declined the honor, and the Democratic ticket came out on Monday morning headed by the name of our fellow-citizen, Dr. F. G. Cook, who, we believe, stood next on the list of candidates. The result of the balloting will be found below. In Ward 1, it will be seen, no Democratic ticket was run and the Republicans had it all their own way.

In Ward 4, a portion of the Republicans ran Mr. C. G. Moffitt for Alderman, against Mr. J. S. Willoughby, the regular nominee of the Republican caucus, and consequently no choice was effected on Monday. At the second balloting, on Tuesday, Mr. Adams, the Democratic candidate, was elected by a majority of three—a result which was effected by Republican votes. We regret the defection in this Ward, for although Mr. Adams is a gentleman respected by men of both parties, we know of no good reason why Mr. Willoughby should not have been supported by his full party vote. In Ward 5, there was also a split and a failure to elect one of the Councilmen on Monday, arising from the fact that one of the regular nominees withdrew himself, and some of the voters were not satisfied with the manner in which the vacancy was filled and ran another candidate. Mr. John Lovejoy was nominated by the Republicans at that Ward on Monday evening, and received every vote cast at the second balloting on Tuesday. In Ward 7 only one Councilman has been chosen, according to the returns on file in the City Clerk's office, although we hear that certificates of election have been issued by the ward officers to two. It is quite possible there may be an error in the returns.

Ward 2 has been again carried by the Democrats, and the Democratic candidate for Alderman in Ward 7 has been elected by a very small majority. Mr. Bird is a gentleman who is very popular as a citizen and it is safe to say that no other man of his party in Ward 7 can at any time command so large a vote as he. We regret the defeat of our friend Adams, but he must "pick his flint and try again." The Board of Aldermen, as will be seen, will contain 4 Republicans and three Democrats, and there are three Democrats elected to the Common Council, with one or two vacancies to be filled in Ward 7, where the Republicans ought to be able to elect their candidates.

Mr. Kimball, our Mayor elect, will doubtless make an efficient and public-spirited officer, and we trust he will have a City Council able and willing to support him in all proper measures for promoting our municipal interests.

We give below a table showing the vote of Rockland for Mayor for thirteen years, and also the full vote of the city on Monday for Mayor, Aldermen and Common Councilmen. Those members elect of the City Council who were in the Common Council are marked with a +.

Capital Punishment in the Legislature.

The question of capital punishment is still pending in the Legislature and has been pretty thoroughly discussed on both sides, by members whose speeches have been printed in full in the Journal. Of the arguments against the abolition of the death penalty, some have been in some respects plausible, but in others unduly unconvincing, and as a whole we find them nothing to destroy the force of the arguments against capital punishment, or to invalidate the testimony of facts and human experience against the gallows. The argument from the Bible, as it is usually put forth by the advocates of the death penalty, is especially lame and inconsistent. We believe that God never intended for Moses to dictate the details of civil or criminal law to the American Republic. The Bible is not a penal statute book for all times and countries, but a guide in spiritual truths and great moral principles. These truths and principles are not violated by the overthrow of the gallows, though a law which was given to the ancient Israelites may be thereby abrogated. A great deal of argument is wasted in the attempt to prove that the command, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed," has not been abrogated and is God's veto against the abolition of the death penalty in Maine, but we don't believe it.

If by this law God requires us to punish the murderer with death, why should we not murder the death penalty upon the man who "curseth his father or his mother," or "who smiteth his father and mother," or for the thirty other offenses detailed in the Mosaic code for which death was to be visited upon the offender? And if life less secure under the gradual relaxation of the death penalty, from early times until the present day, why would it not be better for England to go back to her criminal code existing prior to 1829, when it contained one hundred and thirty capital crimes, and for the State of Maine to set her the example? But it is not true that crime has largely increased since 1860, but the causes are apparent to the most careless observer of the causes which corrupt, and demoralize society, and we need not enlarge upon them; but it is an undeniable fact that there has been no disproportionate increase of crime in those States that have abolished the gallows.

Capital punishment is objectionable because it is an uncertain punishment, and under it the criminal charged with murder is much less likely to get his deserts than if the penalty of his crime were imprisonment for life. Murderers, no doubt, often escape conviction because, though juries believe them guilty, they are unwilling to send them to the gallows while there is a possibility of their innocence. It is objectionable because if the innocent are convicted, as is sometimes the case, and the sentence executed, the law does its victim a terrible wrong which can never be righted. It is objectionable because the influence of the judicial killing of a human being, and the widely publicized report of all the attendant circumstances, are demoralizing to the community, and where one is inspired with any terror of the law, or deterred from crime by such an event, a hundred are insensibly corrupted and brought one degree nearer to the state of mind which makes men criminals. It is objectionable because the law, thus administered, forbids the taking of life, and yet retaliates upon the offender by taking his life itself. It is "blood for blood," and such a law must breed violence and not safety. The State cannot educate the public mind to reverse the sanctity of human life by taking human life itself, in retaliation for its violation by the criminal. It is objectionable because society injures itself when it assumes the office of the executioner. It is contrary to the spirit of the age and wise principles of criminal jurisprudence, and we hope our Legislature will remove it entirely from the statutes of Maine.

Mr. Enron.—Your correspondent is permitted to report property in the several departments of enterprise in this community. The ice business has been unusually prosperous the present winter. We judge that a double quantity of ice has been taken from the pond the present season. New buildings have been erected in which to store it, and many cargoes have been sent abroad.

Our village presents a very lively appearance in pleasant weather. Every day when the weather permits from seventy-five to one hundred cords of wood are sold in our streets.

The harbor as well as the square indicates activity. On Thursday last we counted thirty-one vessels in port, some leading and others waiting for a berth. Messrs. Carleton, Norcross & Co. have already laid the keel of a new vessel. Messrs. Talbot & Muzzey are making similar preparations. It is judged that four vessels will be built here the coming season. The line business is moderate at the present time.

Our schools have just closed their winter term. Mr. Jones of the High School, was obliged to close his labors prematurely on account of ill health. A public examination was not held, but from the well earned reputation of the teacher, we would judge the progress commendable.

The Grammar school was under the instruction of Mr. Martha A. Leach of South Hope. The average number in attendance was fifty-six.

The examination in the several classes were very satisfactory to all. Parents and friends of education were present in appreciation of the labor of one who had done her work so commendably. C. U. Knight, Esq., of the school committee, whose kind and faithful supervision our teachers enjoy and prize, spoke in fitting terms of the progress of the pupils, and also of the excellent moral influence which our teachers have exerted over them. Moral culture should ever be associated with intellectual improvement.

Last, but not least, your correspondent refers with much satisfaction to the progress of our Primary School. This school has been for several terms under the instruction of Miss D. Loren and could not be better supplied.

About seventy pupils have been in attendance and present, and thoroughness in study and progress may be readily seen in the examination.

Maine Legislature.

SENATE.—The bill for the promotion of medical science was taken from the table and on motion of Mr. Buck indefinitely postponed by a vote of 12 yeas to 10 nays. The following is the vote:
Yeas.—Holster, Buck, Fuller, Garcelon, Gardner, Gibbs, Kingsbury, Mitchell, Murray, Stevens, Talbot and Webb—12.
Nays.—Cary, Goodwin, Lang, Lindsey, Ludden, Matthews, O'Brien, Patten, Tyler and West—10.

The doctors and friends of the bill feel somewhat disappointed at the action of the Senate in postponing the bill, but they regard the bill as lost. If, however, the measure is not passed, they will present a bill providing for the repeal of the laws relating to malpractice, in order to make the statutes consistent.

HOUSE.—The question of capital punishment was taken from the table. Mr. Dickey of Bangor, spoke in favor of Mr. Gilbert's bill, and in favor of abolishing the death penalty.

Mr. Irish of Sherman spoke in favor of the bill and the death penalty. He said that the bill was a good one, and that it was possible, permission from the State authorities for a committee of the convicts to visit Augusta, and lay the doings of the meeting before the Legislature. This absurd and ridiculous hoax, yet, by the way, is about as reasonable and truthful as one-half the arguments put forth to sustain the gallows, in our State, was such a transparent falsehood, that no sensible person would, for a moment, have taken the pains to publicly contradict it. It had been confined to its original source, the lying Argus, but by accident or otherwise, the copy, the Boston Advertiser, and the Rockland Gazette, and perhaps other papers, had copied the article in full or in substance, and have alluded to it as an actual fact. And strange as it may seem, I did find intelligent persons who, having read the article in the Gazette, suppose the story to be true, and are denouncing Mr. Rice in the roughest terms. And when questioned, how they could swallow such a foolish lie, they say they did not suppose the Gazette would give currency to such a story in the manner they did, unless there was something in it, and they imagined that the Warden of the Prison had become insane upon the subject of capital punishment.

I hope for the future that the publishers of the Gazette will remember that they have a character for truth and veracity, and will be careful how they give currency, even to the most ridiculous falsehoods.

Remarks were made by several of the brethren at the close of the installation ceremonies, after which refreshments were provided in abundance.

Union Pacific Railroad Progress.

The new heading to the advertisement of the Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad Company tells the story of the continued progress of that work. One thousand and twenty miles finished and the cars now running into Salt Lake Valley! The mountain chains and the wild canyons which intervene between the Plains and the great interior basin have been surmounted and passed, and the whistle of the locomotive may be heard almost at the gates of the Mormon capital. Two hundred miles more (in three months' time) and the continent will be spanned by the iron rail.

The speedy completion of the whole line calls renewed attention to the popular character of the construction of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad Company. The First Mortgage Bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad Company have been sold to the amount of twenty millions. With the completion of the road, the issue of these bonds must stop, and their value to holders will naturally and steadily advance from that time. The late decision of the United States Supreme Court, that both coin and currency are a legal tender, and that all contracts for the payment of coin are valid and may be enforced by law, places the legal liability of the Union Pacific Railroad Company to pay the interest and principle of its mortgage bonds beyond question. What some of the courts have heretofore held was a matter of honor has now become an obligation, and must enhance the market value of these securities. The present high price of governments offers a favorable opportunity for holders to sell and re-invest in Union Pacifics at a profit of $100 to $140 on each bond, and obtain a security equally as safe and really more valuable on account of the longer period before maturity.

A number of the personal friends of the popular commander of the steamer Lewiston, Capt. Deering, visited him at his home, Cliff Cottage, Cape Elizabeth, Wednesday evening and presented him with a very handsome and valuable silver salver, pitcher and goblet.

A reverend gentleman, in whose family allopathic practice prevails, went to the lesser branches thereof, was catching one of his offspring recently, and among other questions, asked: "What is the difference between creed and doctrine?" This was a question to the young class in theology, until a Geyserian old, who was considered exempt, piped out "I know, I know what it is." Well, Johnny, what it is, said the pleased father, "Creed is the Bible, and doctrine is the paragon; the creed is the younger, triumphantly, with a vivid recollection of the last dose ordered by the family physician."

The vote given by Mr. Pike of Maine, Wednesday, against Mr. Schenck's bill, justifies the action of those Republicans who successfully opposed his re-election on account of his unsoundness on the financial questions.—Boston Transcript.

It is indeed a shame that the Republican party of Maine should be held responsible for Mr. Pike's most unwise vote. In Newburyport he received any farther honors from the people of this State either time enough must have elapsed for people to forget what he has done, or there must be a complete revolution in their views on financial questions.—Portland Press.

The Penobscot Bay and River Railroad Company is expected to run its road from Bangor through Winterport, Stockton, Searsport, Belfast, Northport, Lincolnville, Camden, to Rockland. The annual meetings of the Company are to be held in January. In June books are to be opened for subscriptions.

Deacon Samuel Adams who died in Bath last week, had been a resident of that city years, and lived with his wife, who survives him, sixty-two years.

Loss of a New York Ship on Nantucket Shoals.

Two Men Drowned and Two Frozen to Death.

SUFFERING OF THE SURVIVORS.

The brig Clara Jenkins, Captain Gilkey, which arrived at this port on Monday afternoon, brought in the survivors of the crew of the ship Harry Bluff, of New York, Capt. Oliver, from Cadiz, for Boston. They were picked up at sea in the ship's long boat at 9 A. M. on Sunday, having been drifting about for twenty-four hours. The ship was blown to a heavy sea and a fierce north-west wind, which caused intense suffering to the crew, two of whom were frozen to death, and the others narrowly escaped a similar fate.

It appears that the ship sailed from Cadiz on the 16th of last January, and had encountered, after passing the Western Islands, a severe gale of strong gales and high seas, which caused the ship to spring a leak, and one pump was kept going most of the time to keep the vessel from sinking. The crew, notwithstanding the hardships of the voyage she had nearly reached her destination when a mishap terminated her career, resulting in a sad loss of life.

At midnight on Friday last the ship struck on the South Shoal of Nantucket, where she thumped on the hard sands in a manner to threaten her instant destruction. Her crew, however, did not lose heart, and she was anchored in thirteen fathoms of water. She soon began to leak at a serious rate, and in a short time was nearly full of water. Her cargo of salt, in every way, was successful. The supply of refreshments provided for sale was very ample, and the cake tables presented the richest and nicest display we remember to have seen on any similar occasion. The readings given in the upper hall at about nine o'clock, were excellent. O. G. Hall, Esq., read a selection from "Nicholas Nickleby," in which he set forth the character of honest "John Bragge" in a very happy manner. Mrs. Edwin Sprague read the poem of "Mary O'Connor," in which the Irish wife's affection and solicitude for her absent soldier husband and her grief on learning that he had been killed, were admirably rendered with much expression and pathos and a perfect imitation of the rich "brogue" of the Irish tongue. Mrs. Sprague also read another poem, with excellent elocution and much grace and effect. Miss Delora B. Pillsbury read "Babbie Bell," and a humorous poem, acceptably, and Mr. Hall gave an excellent rendering of Lowell's poem, "Jonathan to John." There was also a recitation in character by a little miss.

FUNERAL.—There will be a velocipede race at Freeman's Hall, Saturday evening, commencing at 7 1/2 o'clock. Admission 25 cts. Reserved seats for ladies.

A silver cup will be awarded to the champion rider. All who wish to see sport, should attend this race and see what proficiency our young men are making in velocipede riding.

During the storm on Friday night last, the store of Mr. I. A. Jones, off of Ocean St., was burglariously entered from a rear window, but the thief becoming frightened by the movements of the family over head, whose slumbers he had broken by upsetting an empty barrel as he entered through the window, had only time to abstract about fifty cents worth of two-cent pieces.

In regard to the Democratic candidate for Mayor, Dr. F. G. Cook, we understand there was no caucus nomination, and his name was put on the ticket in some of the wards, and left blank in others, for the voters to put on such name as suited their wishes. If Dr. Cook had been the regular nominee he would undoubtedly have the full strength of his party.

Isidus Soly.—Isidus Soly—lovers of good things—if you want something especially and transcendently lovely, he has the Young's Eating Saloon—try it on his premises and buy a bottle.

The favorite steamer LEWISTON, Capt. Charles Deering, will begin her regular trips this week, arriving here next Saturday morning. She will leave Portland every Friday evening, on the arrival of the express train from Boston, and will touch at Camden and Belfast before she reaches the City of Richmond.

The Bangor and Belfast route, the Lewiston will leave Bangor every Tuesday morning, arriving at Rockland on Tuesday evening. Judge Farwell will continue to be the Agent of this line, as heretofore.

A. R. Leighton has formed a co-partnership with G. W. Drake, for the purpose of carrying on the manufacture of tin and sheet iron ware. Peddlers and all who deal in tin will do well to call on this firm. Old junk, metals and paper stock bought and sold. Farmers are invited to call and examine their bone meal and fertilizers. See advertisements in this paper.

Mr. Cyrus R. Simmons of this city, committed suicide by hanging himself in his room, on North Main street, last Saturday morning. Mr. Simmons was a joiner by trade and we believe, has generally had the reputation of being a worthy, steady and industrious man; but there had been trouble in the family of late, and there are reports that Mr. Simmons abused and ill-treated his wife, who had applied for a divorce, and who had left his house with her son, a lad of fourteen. On Friday Mr. Simmons appeared while at the house of a neighbor, excited and he contemplated suicide, and he was invited to remain there, but declined. The next forenoon he was missed, and some persons making a search for him he was discovered as having a noose around his neck, and he was found dead at 7 o'clock in the morning, in which he indicated his purpose. The deceased was about 50 years of age.

Some weeks since, somebody sent to the Eastern Argus a detailed report of an imaginary meeting of convicts at the State Prison to express their sentiments upon the death penalty. The whole thing was fictitious, of course, and got up to buttress up the arguments against capital punishment; but by some inadvertent error of one of our publishers a condensed version of this fictitious meeting was printed on our first page last week, without any explanation, and we hear that some of our readers took it for sober fact and have been censuring Warden Rice accordingly, for permitting such liberty to his "boarders." We regret the oversight, but wish to undeceive our matter-of-fact readers and exonerate Mr. Rice from the charge of permitting the convicts to assemble for the discussion of the justice of the penal statutes.

The most severe snow storm of the season visited us on Friday afternoon and night of last week, and from the latter part of the afternoon till midnight the snow fell very fast, and the wind blew a gale. In the evening the schooner Bonaventure, of Boothbay, Capt. Knight, loaded with lime and lying at Cobb, Wight & Norton's wharf, filled and sank. The alarm of fire was given, and Dirigo Engine Co. dragged their engine through the deep snow to the vicinity, but their services were not needed. No other very serious damage was done to shipping at the wharves.

The roads were blocked with the great fall of snow, and no mails arrived Saturday morning. The Bath stage due Friday night got as far as Waldoboro, and remained there till Saturday afternoon, when it came through, arriving here at 5 o'clock P. M.

"Sambo, where's your master?" "Gone out." "He left off drinking yet?" "Oh yes, he leave off two, three times dis morning!"

About Town.

The velocipede fever still rages in our midst. But it yet produced no more fatal results than on Sunday jumps, brained along and knuckles, while it is developing the muscle of its subjects and affording them amusement and healthy recreation. Mr. Cummings keeps two of the "machines" running at the City Hall, and Mr. Atkins of Bangor, who opened a "school" in Freeman's Hall last Friday, has three or four of the "bicycles" in constant requisition. Our friend Charles Davis, too, in taking a respite from the study of the law, has purchased a velocipede, and may be found at the small hall under the High School Room, in the Beals' building, ready to accommodate all who wish to ride. Give Charles a call.

At the annual election of Deafness Engine Company, No. 4 on Tuesday evening last, the following officers were chosen—

A. C. HAMILTON, Foreman.
W. P. COOK, 2d Foreman.
S. A. DRYDEN, 3d Foreman.
H. E. SWANSON, Foreman of Hose.
A. D. LAMB, 2d Foreman of Hose.
R. P. PERRY, 3d Foreman of Hose.
W. H. KENISTON, Clerk.
C. C. CROSS, Assistant Clerk.
A. G. THOMAS, Steward.
A. J. CROCKETT, FRANK SIMMONS, JAMES ALMOND, Finance Committee.

The Levee held on Thursday evening last, by the ladies of the Universal Society, was attended by a very large company and was in every way very successful. The supply of refreshments provided for sale was very ample, and the cake tables presented the richest and nicest display we remember to have seen on any similar occasion. The readings given in the upper hall at about nine o'clock, were excellent. O. G. Mrs. Edwin Sprague read the poem of "Mary O'Connor," in which the Irish wife's affection and solicitude for her absent soldier husband and her grief on learning that he had been killed, were admirably rendered with much expression and pathos and a perfect imitation of the rich "brogue" of the Irish tongue. Mrs. Sprague also read another poem, with excellent elocution and much grace and effect. Miss Delora B. Pillsbury read "Babbie Bell," and a humorous poem, acceptably, and Mr. Hall gave an excellent rendering of Lowell's poem, "Jonathan to John." There was also a recitation in character by a little miss.

During the storm on Friday night last, the store of Mr. I. A. Jones, off of Ocean St., was burglariously entered from a rear window, but the thief becoming frightened by the movements of the family over head, whose slumbers he had broken by upsetting an empty barrel as he entered through the window, had only time to abstract about fifty cents worth of two-cent pieces.

In regard to the Democratic candidate for Mayor, Dr. F. G. Cook, we understand there was no caucus nomination, and his name was put on the ticket in some of the wards, and left blank in others, for the voters to put on such name as suited their wishes. If Dr. Cook had been the regular nominee he would undoubtedly have the full strength of his party.
